

Six students were given Flip cameras to show their stories... their way.

What's your story?

Hi, my name is Sunny Patel, I'm from San Antonio, TX, I'm 19 years old, my major is Biochemistry and Pre-Med, and I'm also minoring in Political Science.

Sunny.

During the summer, I went to India, to help out my mom. She was very sick, and while I was there, I caught a disease. I caught typhoid. When I came back from India, and I came back into the United States, we didn't find out until a couple weeks after, that I had typhoid because the doctors here didn't know about it.

You will get nine hours of community service.

I ended up in the hospital for two months. I had just gotten out of high school, so the whole wanting to get in and start, and be on your own, was with me. I applied to six other schools, minus WT. I got accepted to four of those six schools. When it came time for them to give me a chance and work with me, they weren't willing to work with me. Basically what they told me was, sorry we can't let you in this late into the semester, because I was sick, so I couldn't come into school right away. I found a school called West Texas A&M University, on the computer one day. I called them, and they were willing to give me a chance to be here. So West Texas A&M University put a risk in front of me, and I took it. Two years later, here I am.

This is just one story of 100 years, happy birthday WT.
