

Educational Leadership Course Rotation - FALL 2019 -

The Educational Leadership program offers some of its courses on a shortened basis while others are offered on the traditional long semester basis. For those courses that lend themselves to the shortened basis, the long semester is essentially split in half, thereby allowing candidates to take courses consecutively as opposed to concurrently.

Since the internship/practicum courses do not lend themselves to the shortened calendar, they will be offered on the traditional long semester basis. Moreover, the EDPD courses, some of which are required in the M.Ed. degree for Educational Leadership candidates, are offered on the traditional long semester basis.

The table below reveals all EDLD and EDPD courses, as appropriate for Educational Leadership candidates, available in the fall semester as well as the calendar upon which they are offered. The desire of the Educational Leadership program is to offer courses in a manner that is flexible and conducive to candidates' needs.
