

CITI Registration Guidance for Most Human Subjects Researchers

As you go through the CITI registration process, you will arrive at the screen reflected in the screenshot below. The “Role in research” item opens into a small window requesting a selection from the researcher. This selection will determine the training modules that you will have to complete. Common selections for WTAMU researchers are noted with arrows.

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the CITI registration form. The browser's address bar shows 'registration'. The page header includes the CITI logo and the text 'Collaborative Institutional'. A navigation bar contains a 'Home' button. Below the header, there is a vertical stack of images on the left and a main content area on the right. The main content area contains the text 'Please provide the following fields are marked with an asterisk' and a form titled 'Member Information'. The form includes fields for Language Preference, Institutional email address, Gender, Highest degree, Employee Number, Department, Role in research, Address Field 1, Address Field 2, Address Field 3, City, State, and Zip/Postal Code. The 'Role in research' field is a dropdown menu that is currently open, showing a list of roles. Three arrows point to specific roles in the dropdown: 'Principal Investigator', 'Student Researcher - Graduate level', and 'Student Researcher - Undergraduate'. The text 'Texas A&M University. Required' is visible on the right side of the form.
